

El Corredor Seco is a strip of land that extends from southern Mexico to Panama, characterized by severe weather. It represents vulnerability as an effect of climate change and the urgent need to build greater resilience in the region.

Water at El corredor seco

MÉXICO

GUATEMALA

HONDURAS

EL SALVADOR

NICARAGUA

COSTA RICA

PANAMÁ

In the Dry Corridor of Central America, crops are increasingly a matter of luck

- Strong impact on the livelihoods of the population, eminently agricultural
- Extreme poverty
- Food security

Human right to water and climate change

- Restrictions on the realisation
- Sufficient, safe, acceptable, physically accessible and affordable
 - No discrimination
 - Safe hygienic, secure, socially and culturally acceptable privacy, dignity.
 - No discrimination
- UNDERMINE THE ENJOYMENT OF THE RIGHTS.

Indigenous peoples and rural populations

- Subsistence farming.
- Vulnerable situations: poverty, gender, age, minority status, and disability.
- Small-scale producers and rural communities

Thanks !

.

www.humanright2water.org
Access to water and sanitation through law and policy reform

Géraldine Gené Barrios.

Senior Legal Expert.

Human Right 2 Water.

g.gene@humanright2water.org

